

 SKARGAARDEN

Scandinavian Outdoor Design

The beast and the beauty

We design and manufacture Scandinavian design for outdoor use. And outdoor is a different thing here. It's harsh and austere, violent and moody.

Outdoor looks at furniture and tests them with wind, cold, and every type of water there is: rain, snow, hail. These are the terms, and they are non-negotiable, for craftsmanship and durability.

Then again, outdoor in the Nordics is also what you see on this page. Not often, for sure, but every now and then. It's a fairly hard thing to match. It's for you to say if we've succeeded. We did our best.

Welcome to Skargaarden.

We care a lot about what we do, so you don't have to

Last year we launched Bönan and Saltö, two lounge ranges in aluminium, with cushions clad in waterproof Sunbrella fabrics.

Furniture that is entirely maintenance-free, apart from having to shake off droplets of rain that land on the cushions: furniture that you can put outside and leave there.

This year will see the launch of Asker, Anholt and Lidö, three more ranges imbued with the same characteristics – but with a unique expression. And just as ideal if you're looking for a sofa for your deck in Oslo, or decorate a gigantic hotel on Hawaii.

Teak is the original (almost) maintenance-free material

It is not coincidence that teak is a popular material for outdoor furniture. It's hard wearing and durable. When you buy teak furniture, you have a choice. Either you keep the dark amber shade and oil it twice a year, which is quick and easy to do. Or you can let the teak gradually take on a silver-grey hue by not oiling it. Then you have a piece of furniture that lasts, if not an eternity, for a lifetime – an undemanding lifetime. Which you prefer is a question of taste. Naturally, we only use cultured teak, from approved suppliers. Our furniture is both durable and sustainable.

Make the outdoor room an outdoor hall

New for this year: the Djurö Extendable Dining Table. You can seat 14 people around it, and eat, talk, drink Bourgogne, philosophize, laugh, tell stories, and eat a little more.

ANHOLT

Isolated, in the middle of the otherwise open sea between Sweden and Denmark, belonging to the latter, lies Anholt. A spectacular island in many ways, all of them very toned-down. For example, most of the island is desert, the only one in the Nordics. But a flourishing desert, with more than 400 varieties of flowers.

The lounge system with the same name is made to withstand the summers in the Nordic desert, as well as the autumns and winters. And they are something very different. Aluminium frames, and cushions that can be left outdoors. The same kind of barren beauty as the island can be found in its lines.

It's also somewhere between Danish and Swedish in terms of appearance. Which isn't the worst place to be at all.

Looking for an outdoor sofa? Check out the back of it. It's often as visible as the front, due to the common lack of walls in gardens. The Anholt Sofa passes the test.

ARHOLMA

A classic stainless steel cafe chair for outdoor use – but also a kind of test of how minimalistic a chair can get and still have a distinctive character. The result is aesthetics, governed by ethics. Or, put simply, the opposite of wear and tear.

Sustainability, in all aspects of the word, is at its core. It's durable, resilient and resource-smart. It looks contemporary by being timeless. This chair will last. And it will not be out-dated.

Inspiration for the chair, and its name, comes from Arholma, an island with a secret defence facility hidden inside its cavernous rocks. Products designed for military use are made to be resource-efficient, have long lifespans, and a simplicity that comes from a clearly defined function, be it a Jeep or an M65 jacket.

Arholma is that. It can be on the deck of a destroyer, in grey camouflage, or outside an ice cream stall in Vienna, on the gravel, under the oak trees.

Stackable, durable, desirable (if we may say so) and simply able: Arholma looks great as a sculptural installation as well, if you're tired of just sitting on your patio chairs.

ASKER

If you sail into the Oslofjord, you pass Asker, just before you arrive in Oslo. In fact, you should sail the length of the Oslofjord. It is extremely beautiful, in a distinctly Scandinavian way: entirely without being extravagant or extreme. Kind of like the Asker lounge sofa.

It has an angular, but also rounded expression. It's voluminous, sure. But also surprisingly tight. Not too much of anything, which may sound like a compromise. But it is anything but.

There are higher mountains, greener forests, whiter wooden houses, and more serrated rocks than you see from the sailboat on your way to Asker. But like the sofa, it's the whole that counts. The sofa and the fjord have another thing in common. They can withstand the Scandinavian weather.

The rain does not worry them, the sun does not bleach them.

Seams usually keep a low profile and don't make a fuss, in general. With Asker, however, the seams take centre stage.

BÖNAN

Bönan is a sleepy fishing village on the Swedish coast, a couple of hours' drive north of Stockholm. It's just a few boats and a lighthouse, really. On an amazing nearby seaside lot, two of Skargaarden's founders built what looks like a modern incarnation of a mid-century Case Study House.

Then they needed a sofa: one that would capture the spirit of the house, the village and the Baltic coast; as well as art, love and preferably life in general. Oh, and you should be able to leave it by the pool all year, without worrying about it or maintaining it.

Actually, that last point is something we've heard more than once from hotel and restaurant owners in warmer parts of the world as well. So why not make a sofa for Bönan that could be used anywhere? But in the end, we weren't happy just making a sofa. We created a modular sofa system that can be assembled in many different combinations.

Kind of clever – even if we say so ourselves.

A smooth, grey-granite table-top is a perfect match for the white-painted aluminium. Plus, it's equally durable and maintenance-free. A bit heavier, though. But who's perfect, right?

DJURÖ

Djurö is a secret place. An island right in the middle of Lake Vänern, isolated from the world by water that stretches into the distance. Out here, you can easily feel as though you are out at sea, or the last person on Earth.

Our Djurö furniture range is not quite as secret, but it does share some of the same qualities – the same sensation of other-worldliness.

Djurö has strong links to the past, to the iconic Scandinavian teak furniture of the 50s. It also gives a nod to the future with its durable acrylic fabric. Past and future combine to create a strong sensation of the here and now – simple, but not the least bit spartan.

Here's the sunbed that we've added to the range. It pretty much encapsulates this concept.

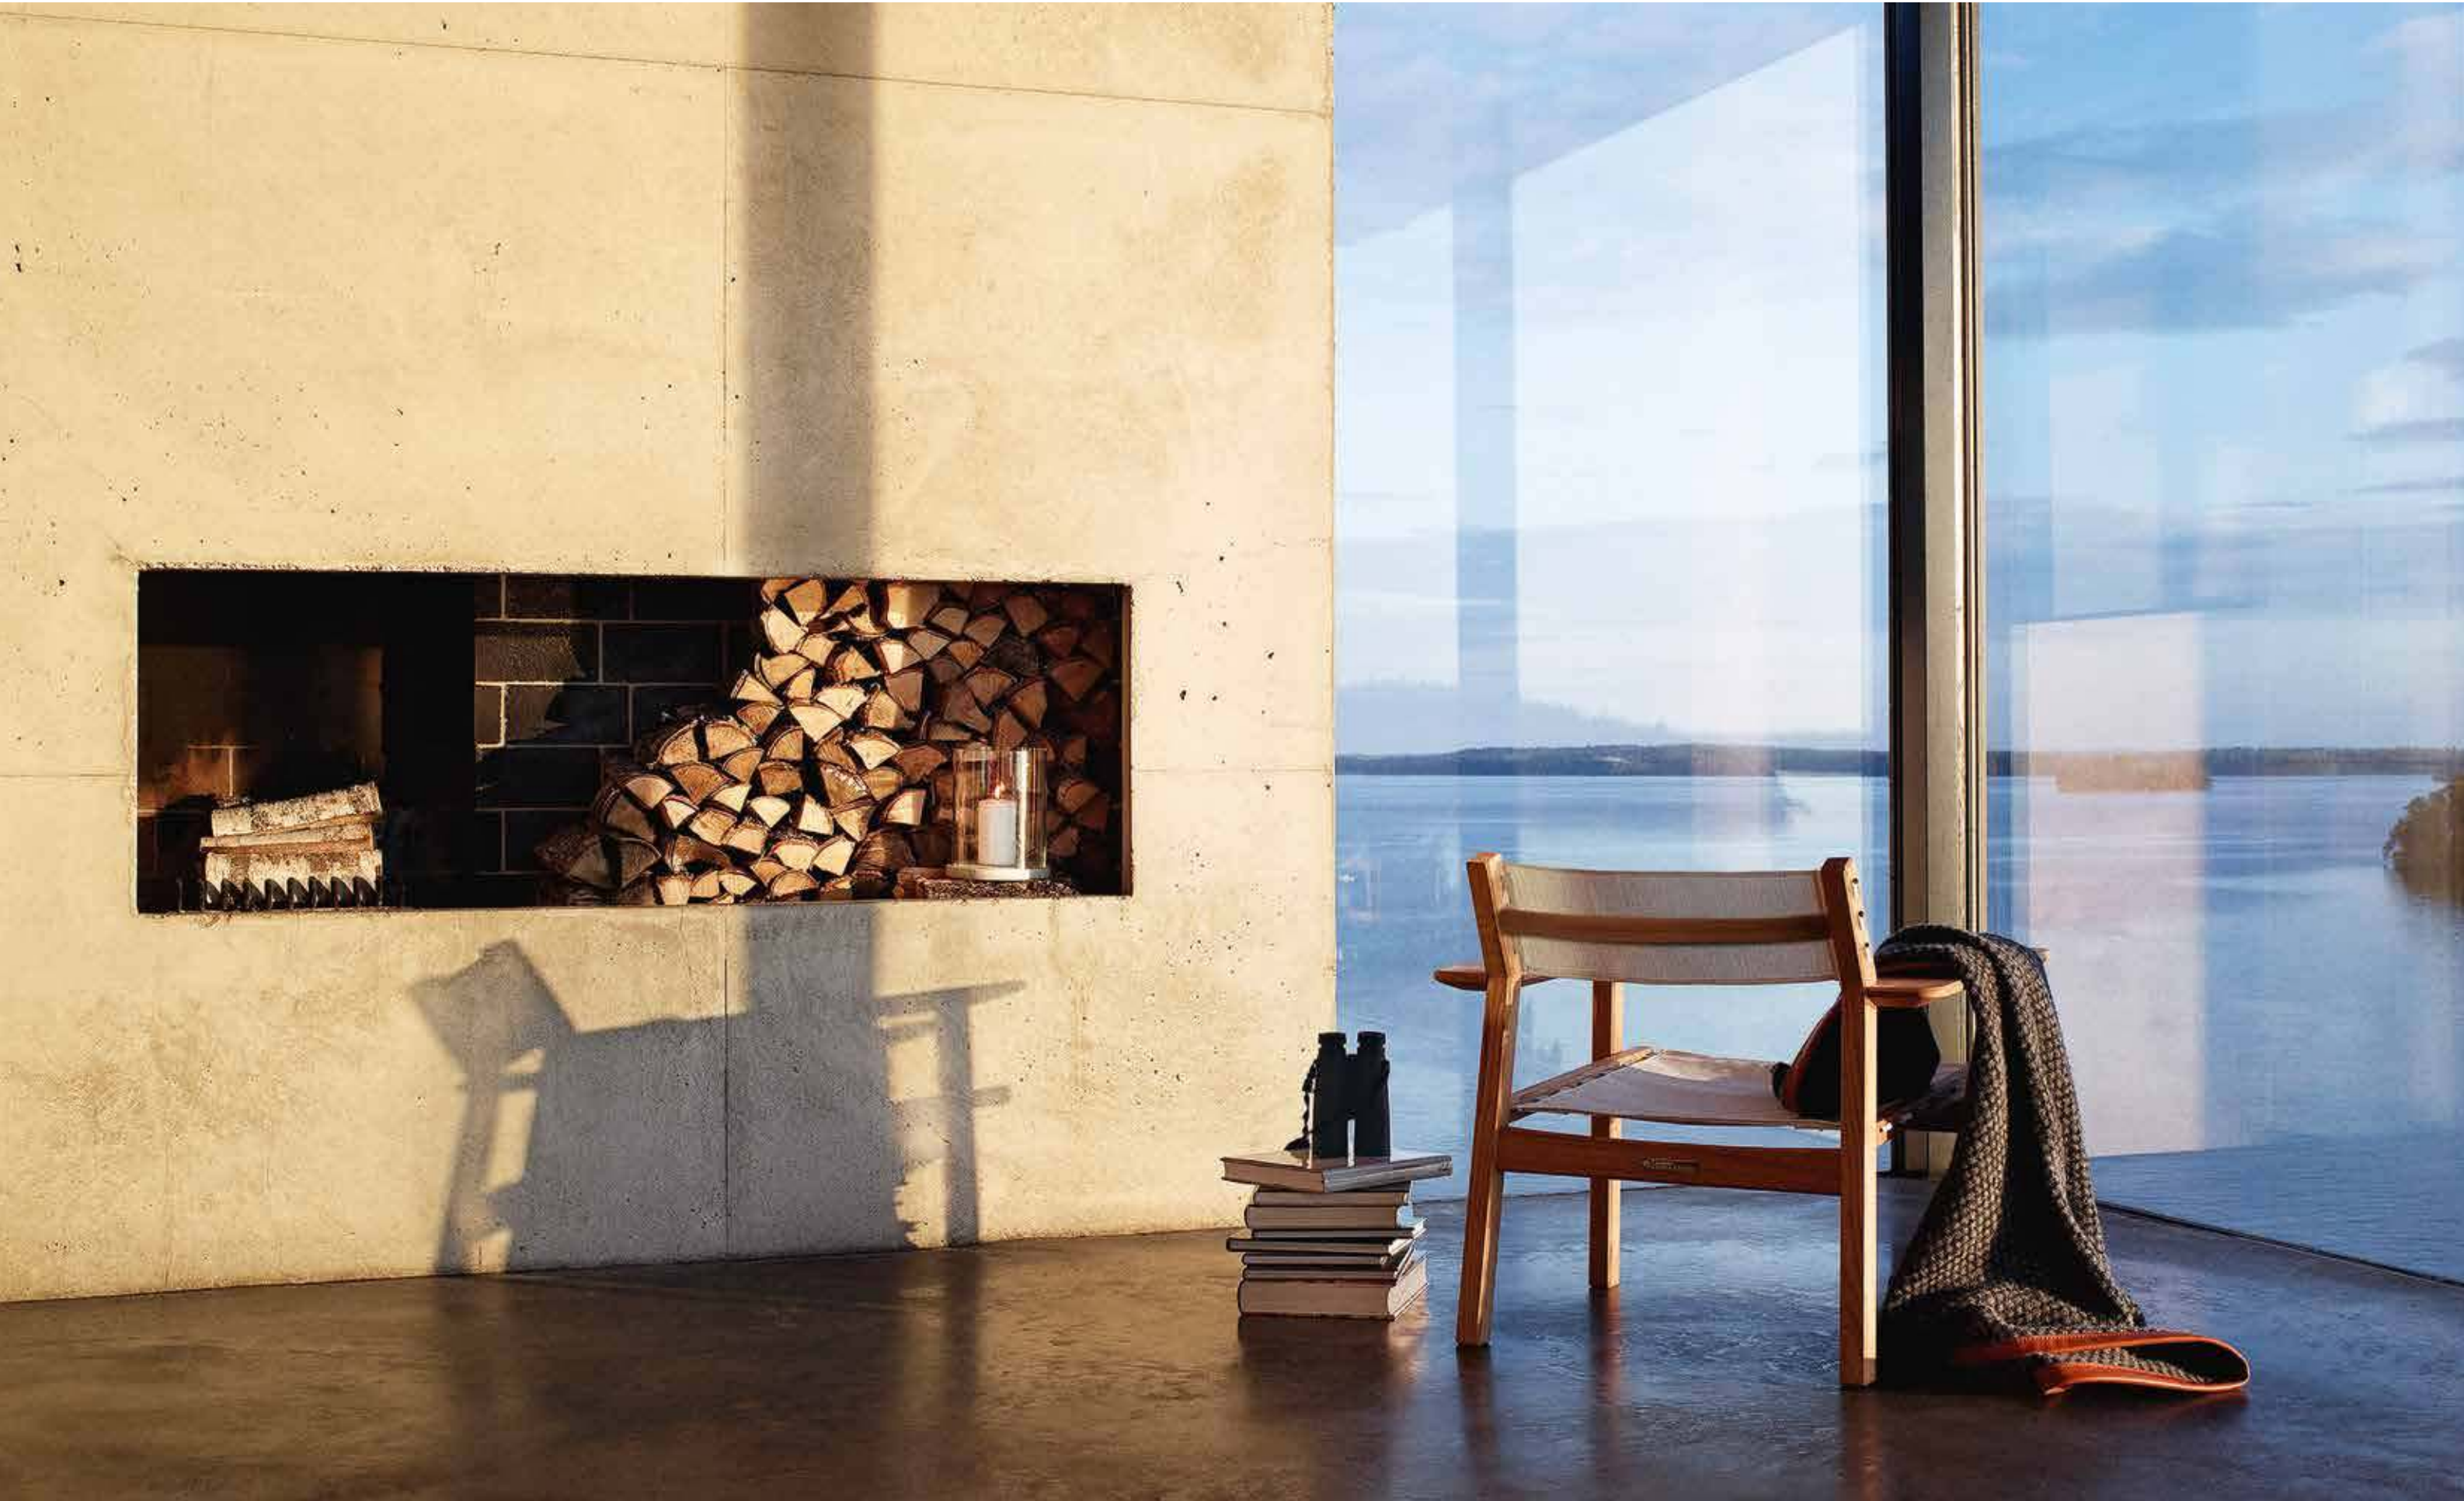

At Skargaarden we love it when objects look super simple and obvious at first sight, only to become intriguing when you look more closely. The Djurö Dining Chair is one of the best manifestations of this.

GRINDA

Standing on the gravel in front of his villa, Swedish lawyer and financier Henrik Santesson smokes a cigarette, his eyes squinting in the soft June light. It is 1930, and he's on the island of Grinda, in the Stockholm archipelago.

A thousand miles away, in Dessau, Germany, Hungarian-born Marcel Breuer sits on one of the Bauhaus Schools' rooftop terraces. He's dressed in a casual summer suit and bowtie. When he shuts his eyes, he imagines metal that can be moulded into any shape. Upon opening his eyes, he sees the same stars that Santesson sees.

The Grinda dining chair pays homage to both these men. Quiet steel frames that carry rustic wooden slats without a murmur. At the same time, it is both aesthetically functional and so beautiful it feels perfectly natural on the gravel in front of the Santesson home

There's something very orderly, minimalistic and restful about the Grinda chair. This isn't jazz-style teak with its stressful, atonal improvisations. Nah, this is more like Bach's classic "Goldberg Variations" in hardwood.

HÄRINGE

Häringe Castle is nestled in Landfjärden Bay, just 30 minutes outside of Stockholm. It had stood there for 272 years when Torsten Kreuger purchased the property in 1929. Torsten was a man with little appreciation for historic landmarks and a keen interest in modern trends and amenities.

He quickly installed a fridge in the kitchen, a skittle alley in one of the wings and Sweden's first outdoor swimming pool in the castle gardens. Over time, the castle became a jet-set haute for stars and socialites, including the likes of Josephine Baker and Greta Garbo.

Decadent? Perhaps a bit. Fashionable? To some extent.

If you were to design a piece of furniture according to the same principles, you could base it on solid traditions with precise, balanced lines. To the classic, original design you might add a touch of decadent playfulness and a very relaxed way of relating to luxury.

This was what we did when we developed the Häringe range. Greta Garbo would have been the perfect company. But any mysterious beauty in dark sunglasses would do.

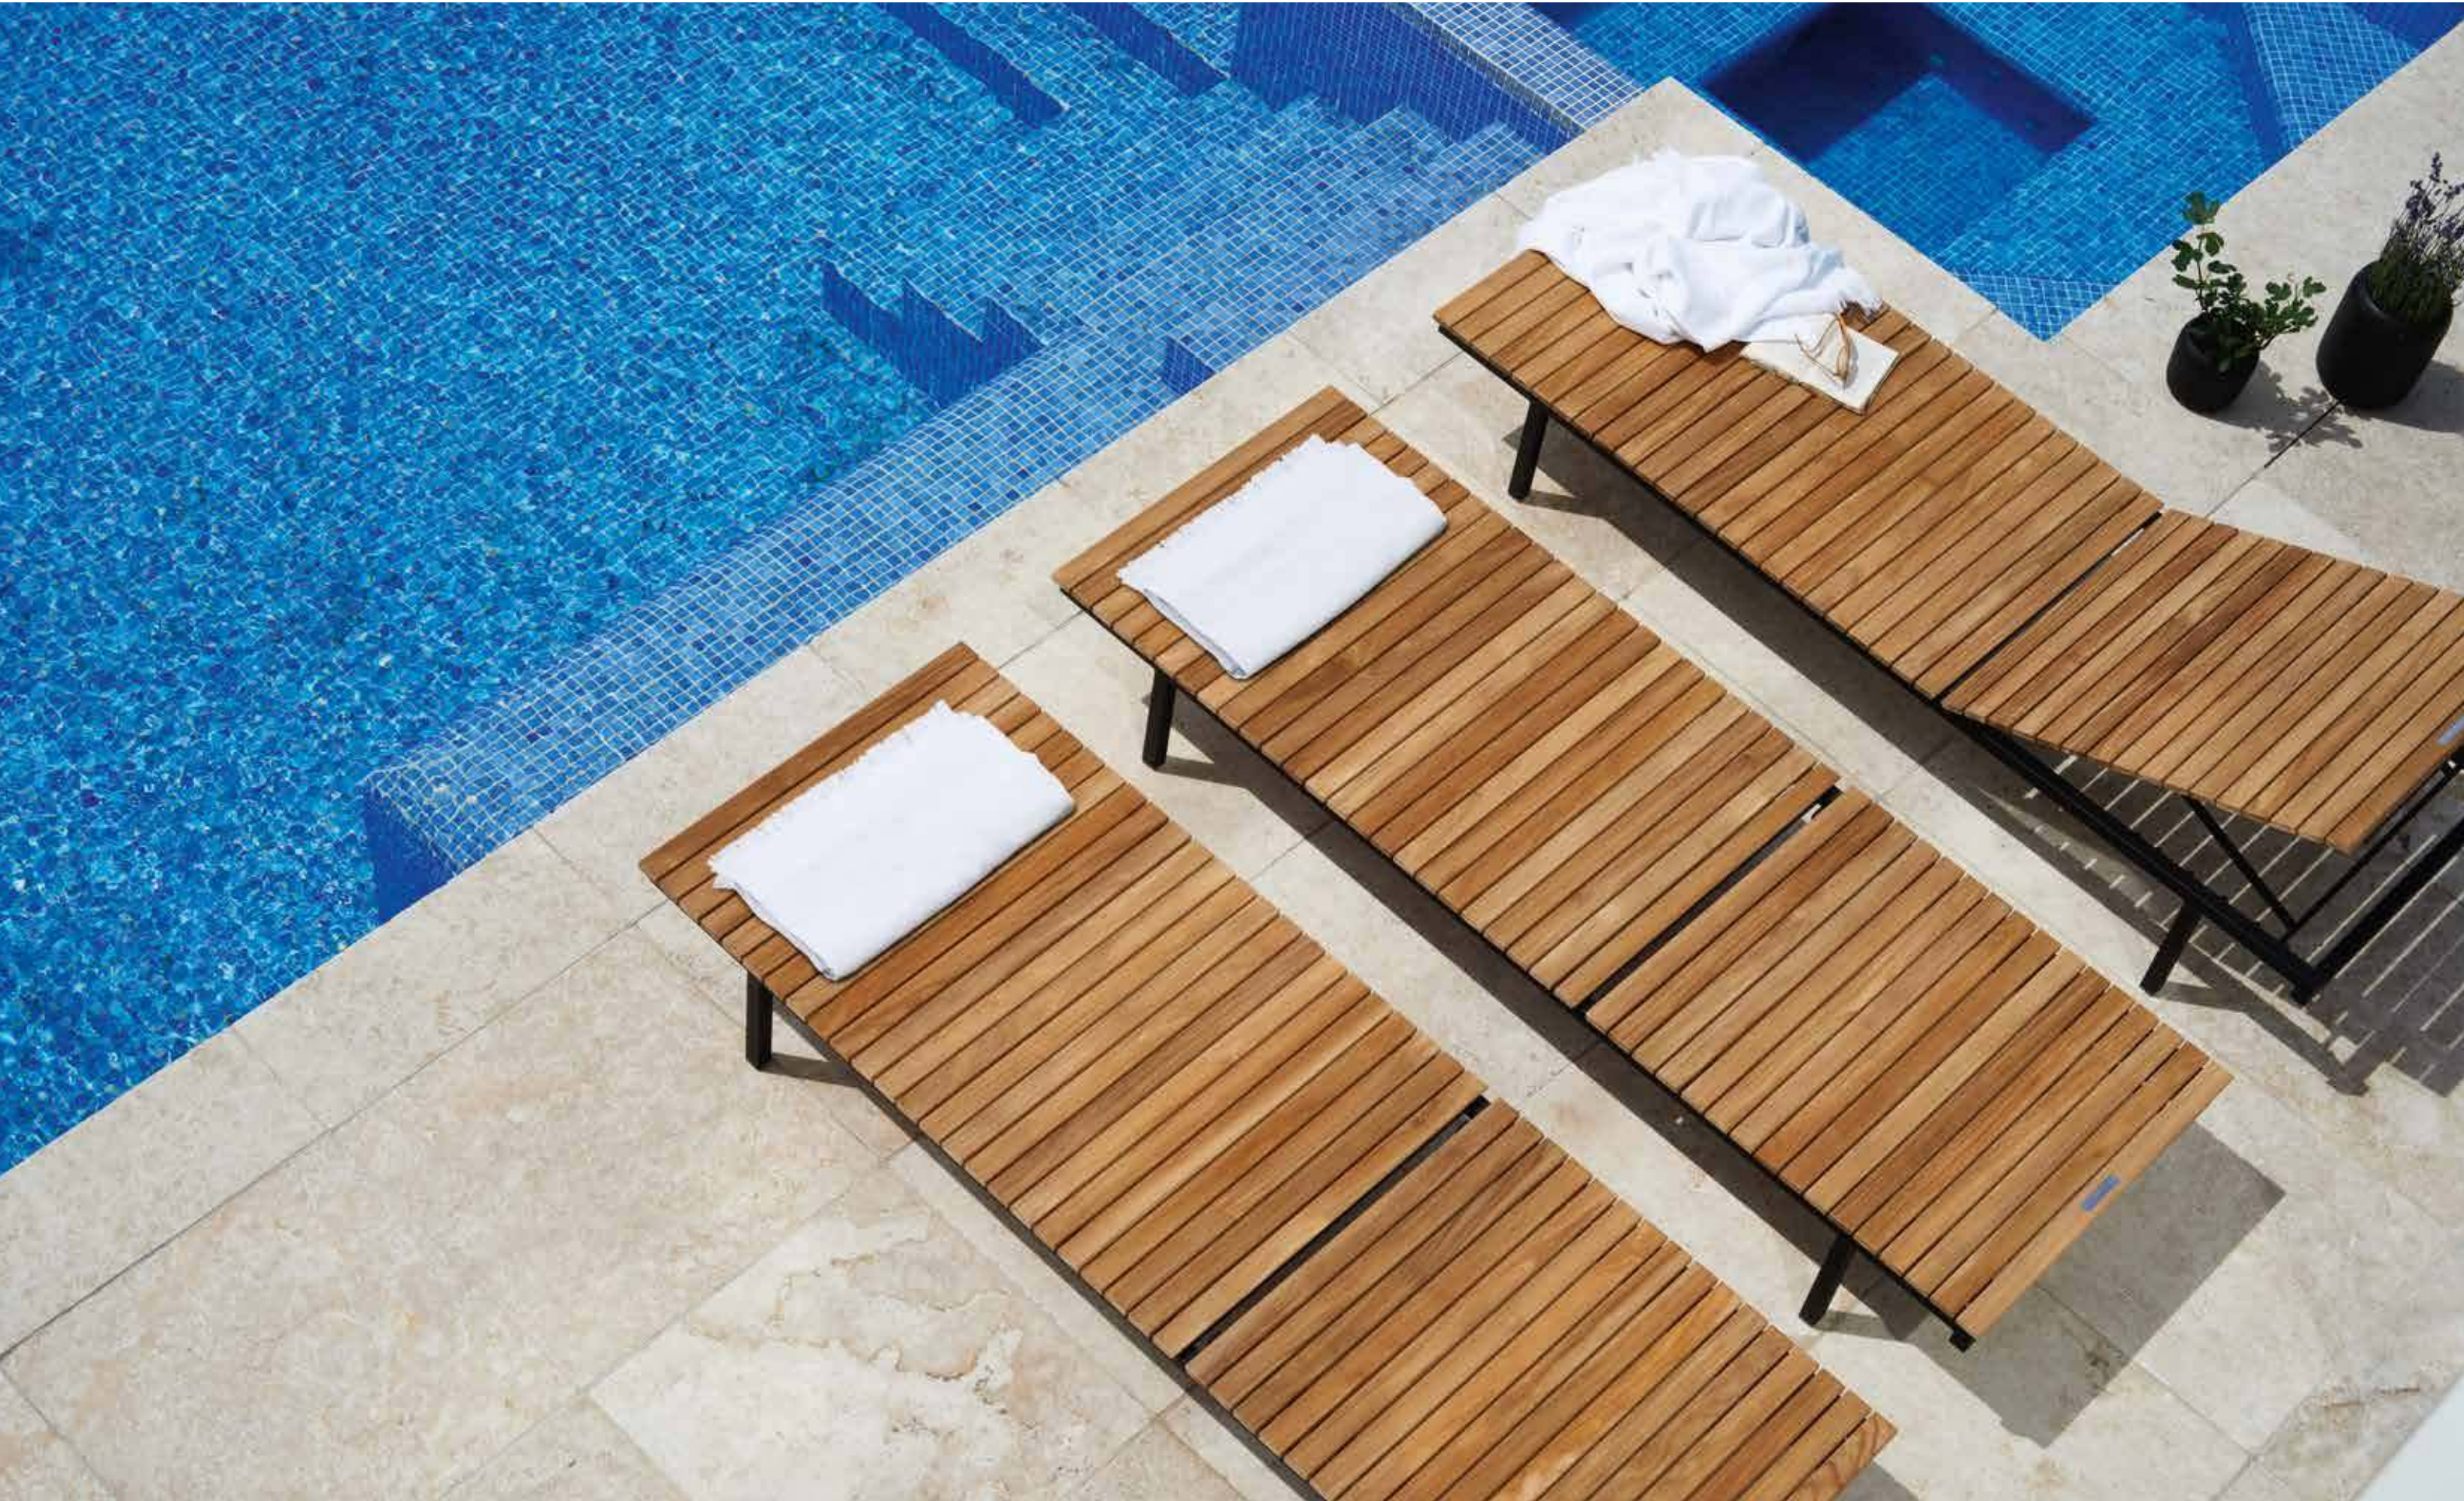

It takes forever to weld and polish the steel – not to mention sanding and polishing all those teak slats and then screwing them perfectly into place. If only the result was something extravagant, but it's not. It's just quiet perfection. Well, fair enough.

H55

The Swedish Society of Industrial Design arranged the Helsingborg Exhibition of 1955, to, in the optimistic spirit of the age, showcase the previous 25 years since the Stockholm Exhibition in 1930.

The event acquired the neat nickname of H55. Scandinavia's designers were extremely well represented, including Alvar Aalto, Stig Lindberg, Yngve Ekström, Finn Juhl and Arne Jacobsen.

And Björn Hultén. He designed a sun chair for the exhibition, one of the things that we at Skargaarden have always held dear as a source of reference and inspiration.

It's so perfect it's almost provocative. How so little material can provide so much comfort. How something that speaks with such subtlety can become the focal point for a whole garden.

More than 60 years have passed. Still, a nicer-looking sun chair is yet to be designed.

Minimalism can be intellectual and boring. The H55 is not. It's minimalism that's had a few glasses of wine, now walking barefoot in the sand, with a perfectly worn linen suit, saying charming things to other people.

KERTEMINDE

Kerteminde is in many ways the typical, small Danish town. Located by the sea, windy, un-indulgent and uneventful. In fact, the tiny island of Romsø, just one nautical mile from the shore, is marketed as a place where nothing ever happens. “No beach, no coffee, no service.”

The Kerteminde chair captures the qualities of the town fairly well. There’s nothing spectacular or boastful about it. But then again, it’s really great to sit on, since there’s a springiness in the backrest. And after all, that’s not entirely unimportant for a chair.

We also believe it’s minimalistic enough to be essential. Although slender and neat, it’s robust and sturdy enough to beat the elements. And there are quite a few elements to beat on the Danish coast.

All in all it’s the perfect chair for cafés and restaurants. It also fits perfectly for those of you who occasionally treat your garden or balcony like a café for reading books, hanging out with friends, having a nightcap or perhaps breakfast.

Forest green steel and simplistic teak slats: weighty enough to stand firmly, with a very casual attitude. “Never mind me,” it says. “Sit down if you want to, but no stress. I’m fine just standing here looking sharp.”

KRYSS

In 1975, Björn Hultén was commissioned to design the interior of the Swedish Embassy in Cairo. He designed and placed several foldable chairs for the embassy terrace. A hundred years earlier, a similar type of chair had been a favourite of the British, who took them to Egypt, which was then part of the Empire.

Designing an embassy with the furniture of a former occupying power might seem rather ill-advised, diplomatically speaking. But Björn had already visited Cairo as early as 1960 to see the National Museum's furniture collection from Tutankhamon's tomb. And there it was – the chair. Albeit in ebony, decorated with ivory and gold.

Björn saw a wood and fabric chair that could be folded and carried.

The chair on the terrace was a subtle but distinct reference to an Egyptian legacy, roughly three thousand years older than the British safari chair.

We've since added a dining version of it, which is a bit higher, as well as a new table to match. Like its predecessor, the new chair is exceedingly comfortable to sit in, even if you're not a diplomat.

Given how good it looks, it's pretty unlikely that someone would like to actually fold the Kryss Dining Chair to store it. But you can bring it to your favourite place. That's something.

LIDÖ

In the 17th century, the nobleman Bengt Oxenstierna built a baroque mansion on the Island of Lidö. Then along came the Russians and burned it down in 1719. These were harsh times.

Since then, though, it's been a peaceful island. Today people come here to eat at the local restaurant, or stroll through the beautiful meadows along the shore. It's a place for hanging out without a care in the world. Pretty much like the lounge range Lidö.

Made in aluminium, with clever Sunbrella fabric covered cushions, it can be put on a shore-side meadow, or anywhere, and then stand there, regardless of wind and weather.

Sit down, by all means. Have a drink. Think about all the stories there must be about all the twenty-something thousand islands in the Stockholm archipelago, that have never been told.

We tend to talk a lot about elaborated details. But this image says it better than words, we believe.

NOZIB

Nils-Ole Zib's design philosophy can be described as a type of orthodox interpretation of 'less is more'. Excitement, he says, happens when everything non-essential is scaled back to a point where you can't remove anything else. The Nozib Sunlounger, designed in 1986, proves this point perfectly.

Or so it appeared, even to Nils-Ole, for quite some time. But it turned out it was actually possible to remove even more. Not to improve the original, but to expand it. So now, with a more conventional seating length and four legs instead of resting on all 24 slats, there is also the Nozib Lounge Chair. Reduced, then further reduced.

Not entirely half-bad.

It's been twenty-eight years since Nils-Ole Zib designed the original Nozib Sunlounger. Now we're extending the line. Who knows what will be added in another twenty-eight years?

Not only do trees have the ability to turn sunlight into sugar and carbon dioxide into oxygen, their wood can also be shaped into sublimely poetic chairs by, let's say, some Danish genius. Trees are the best.

OXNÖ

Oxnö lies on the island of Gålö in the Stockholm archipelago. Here, pines edge toward the waterline, held back by grey rocks with the quiet authority of millions of years of experience. This is not a spectacular place, but one that is uncomplicated and beautiful: precisely the sublime qualities that inspire our Oxnö range of dining chairs and tables.

The Oxnö chair has curved slats in the seat, which by their ingenious design seem to float just outside the frame. The details are innovative and intricate, but the overall impression is so simple that it almost feels effortless. It is nearly as though the chair is aware of its own clarity.

Meanwhile in Oxnö: nothing, absolutely nothing, happens that has not already happened for the past ten thousand years.

The same pines, the same rocks.

*Have a seat! Have a teak or Batyline textile seat. Have a really neat seat.
Have a drink. Have a chat. Have a glass of water in the sun.*

RESÖ

The E6 motorway runs all the way up to Kirkenes, in the far north of Scandinavia, where Norway meets Russia. But travellers who turn off at Kragenäs, in Bohuslän on the Swedish west coast, and follow the road over two bridges, end up at Resö instead.

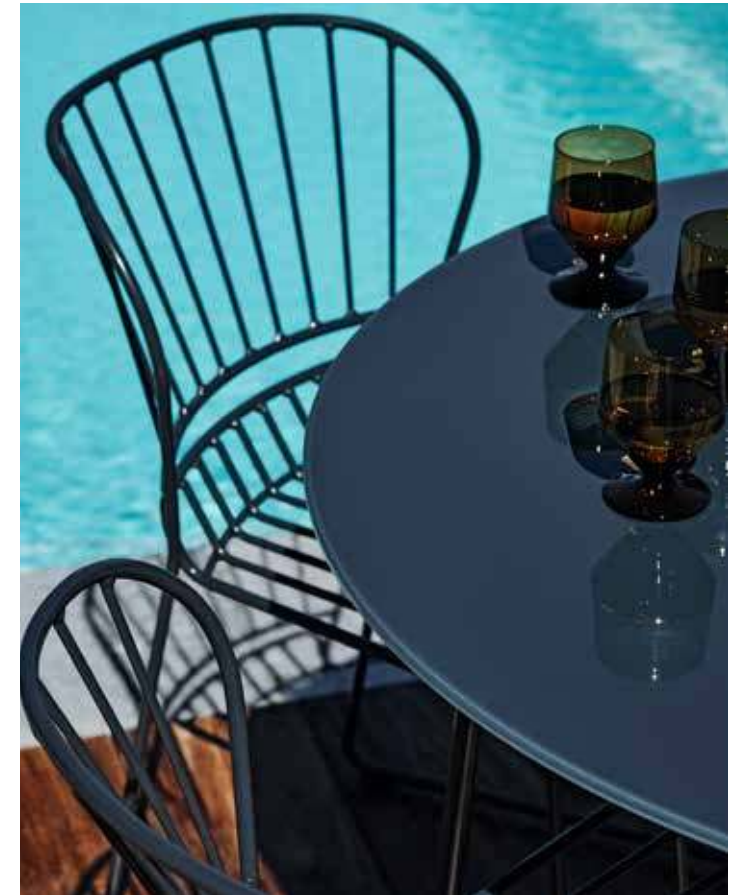

It's a fishing village that refused to die and became a tourist destination. Here you can sit on the veranda of the boarding house by the sea and have a beer. And when you look out across the archipelago, you could, accidentally, get an idea for a range of furniture. One in which the steel performs with a gentle grace and air is the dominant material.

Those who miss the Resö turnoff have another 1,600 km before they reach Kirkenes. On the way, they pass Narvik, the harbour from which Kiruna's iron ore is shipped to become steel. The circle closes, even though you are still in Bohuslän.

The Resö Bar Stool is new for this year. It comes in two heights.

The Resö range is growing slowly. Now we have bar stools in addition to the dining chairs, tables and the bench, as well as the Resö Lounge chairs and tables. Oh, and here's the new table with a glass table-top.

SALTÖ

The islands along Sweden’s west coast have been formed by wind and salt. On the shores of Saltö, you’ll see smooth driftwood framed by sea holly and oyster plants. It’s so beautiful you might want to put a sofa right on the shore. It’d have to be a sturdy one to work here. And easy on the eye.

So, what if we were to let this landscape commission a range of furniture?

“Make it from aluminium”, the shore might say. “Then salt and rain can have their way. And give it sumptuous Sunbrella-covered cushions that dry really quick.”

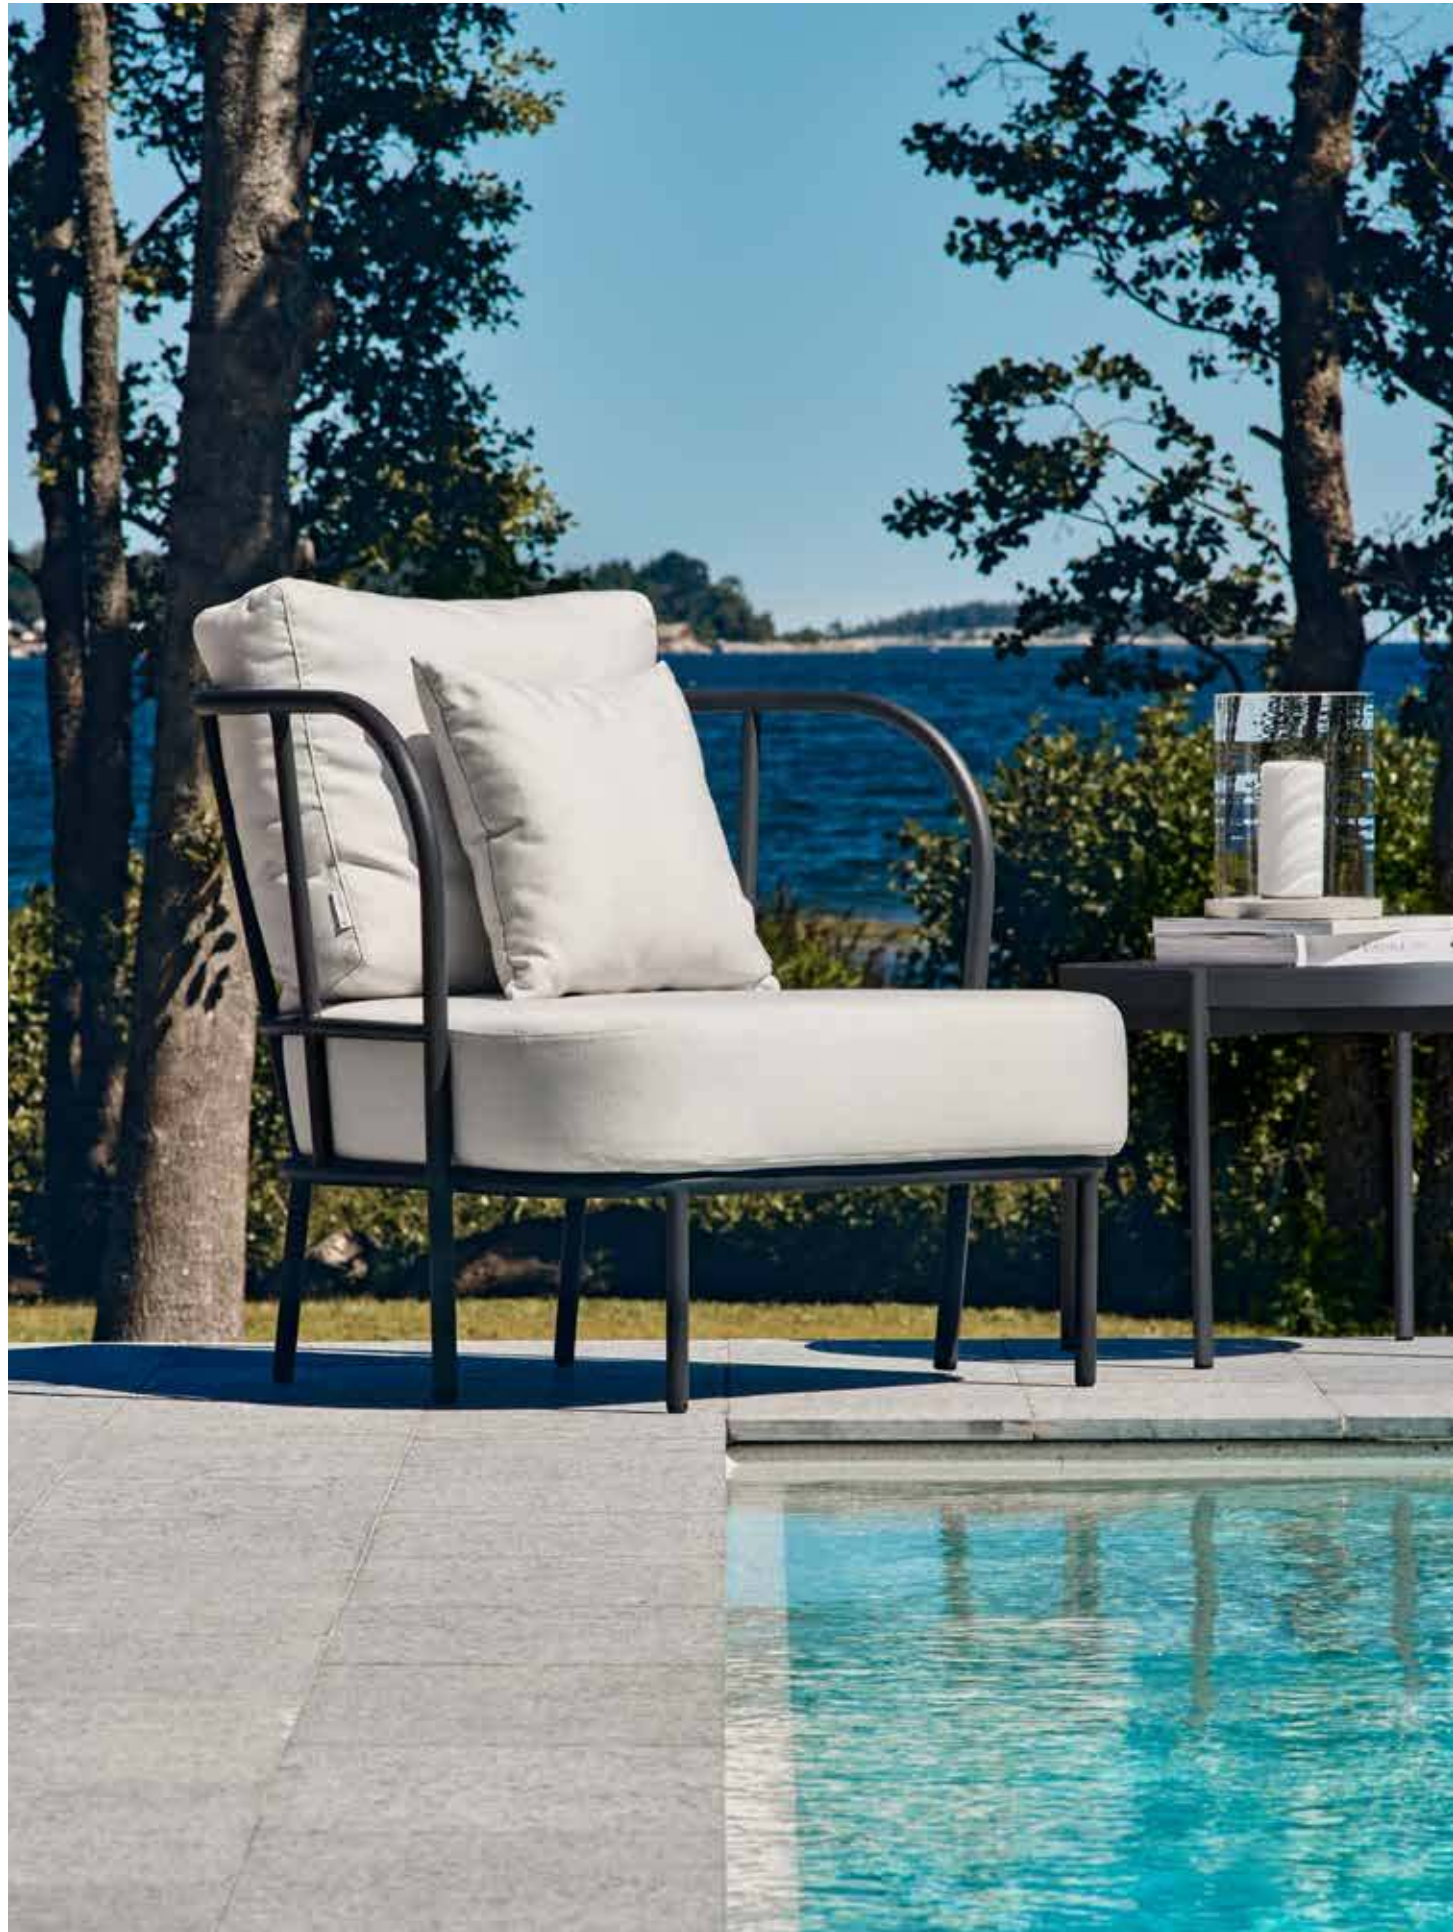

Fair enough.

“And make sure there are both lounge and dining chairs. And a sofa. No fuss, design-wise. Simple but not plain.”

Great, we’ll have a go.

What a perfect side table, isn't it? It holds just what you need to stay hydrated on a warm day.

SKANÖR

The southwest corner of Sweden is a peninsula stretching out towards Denmark, and on it are the twin towns of Skanör and Falsterbo – both of them exude bohemian nobility and natural privileges.

Here, obviously, Joseph Frank drew and built five summer houses – the only ones in Sweden.

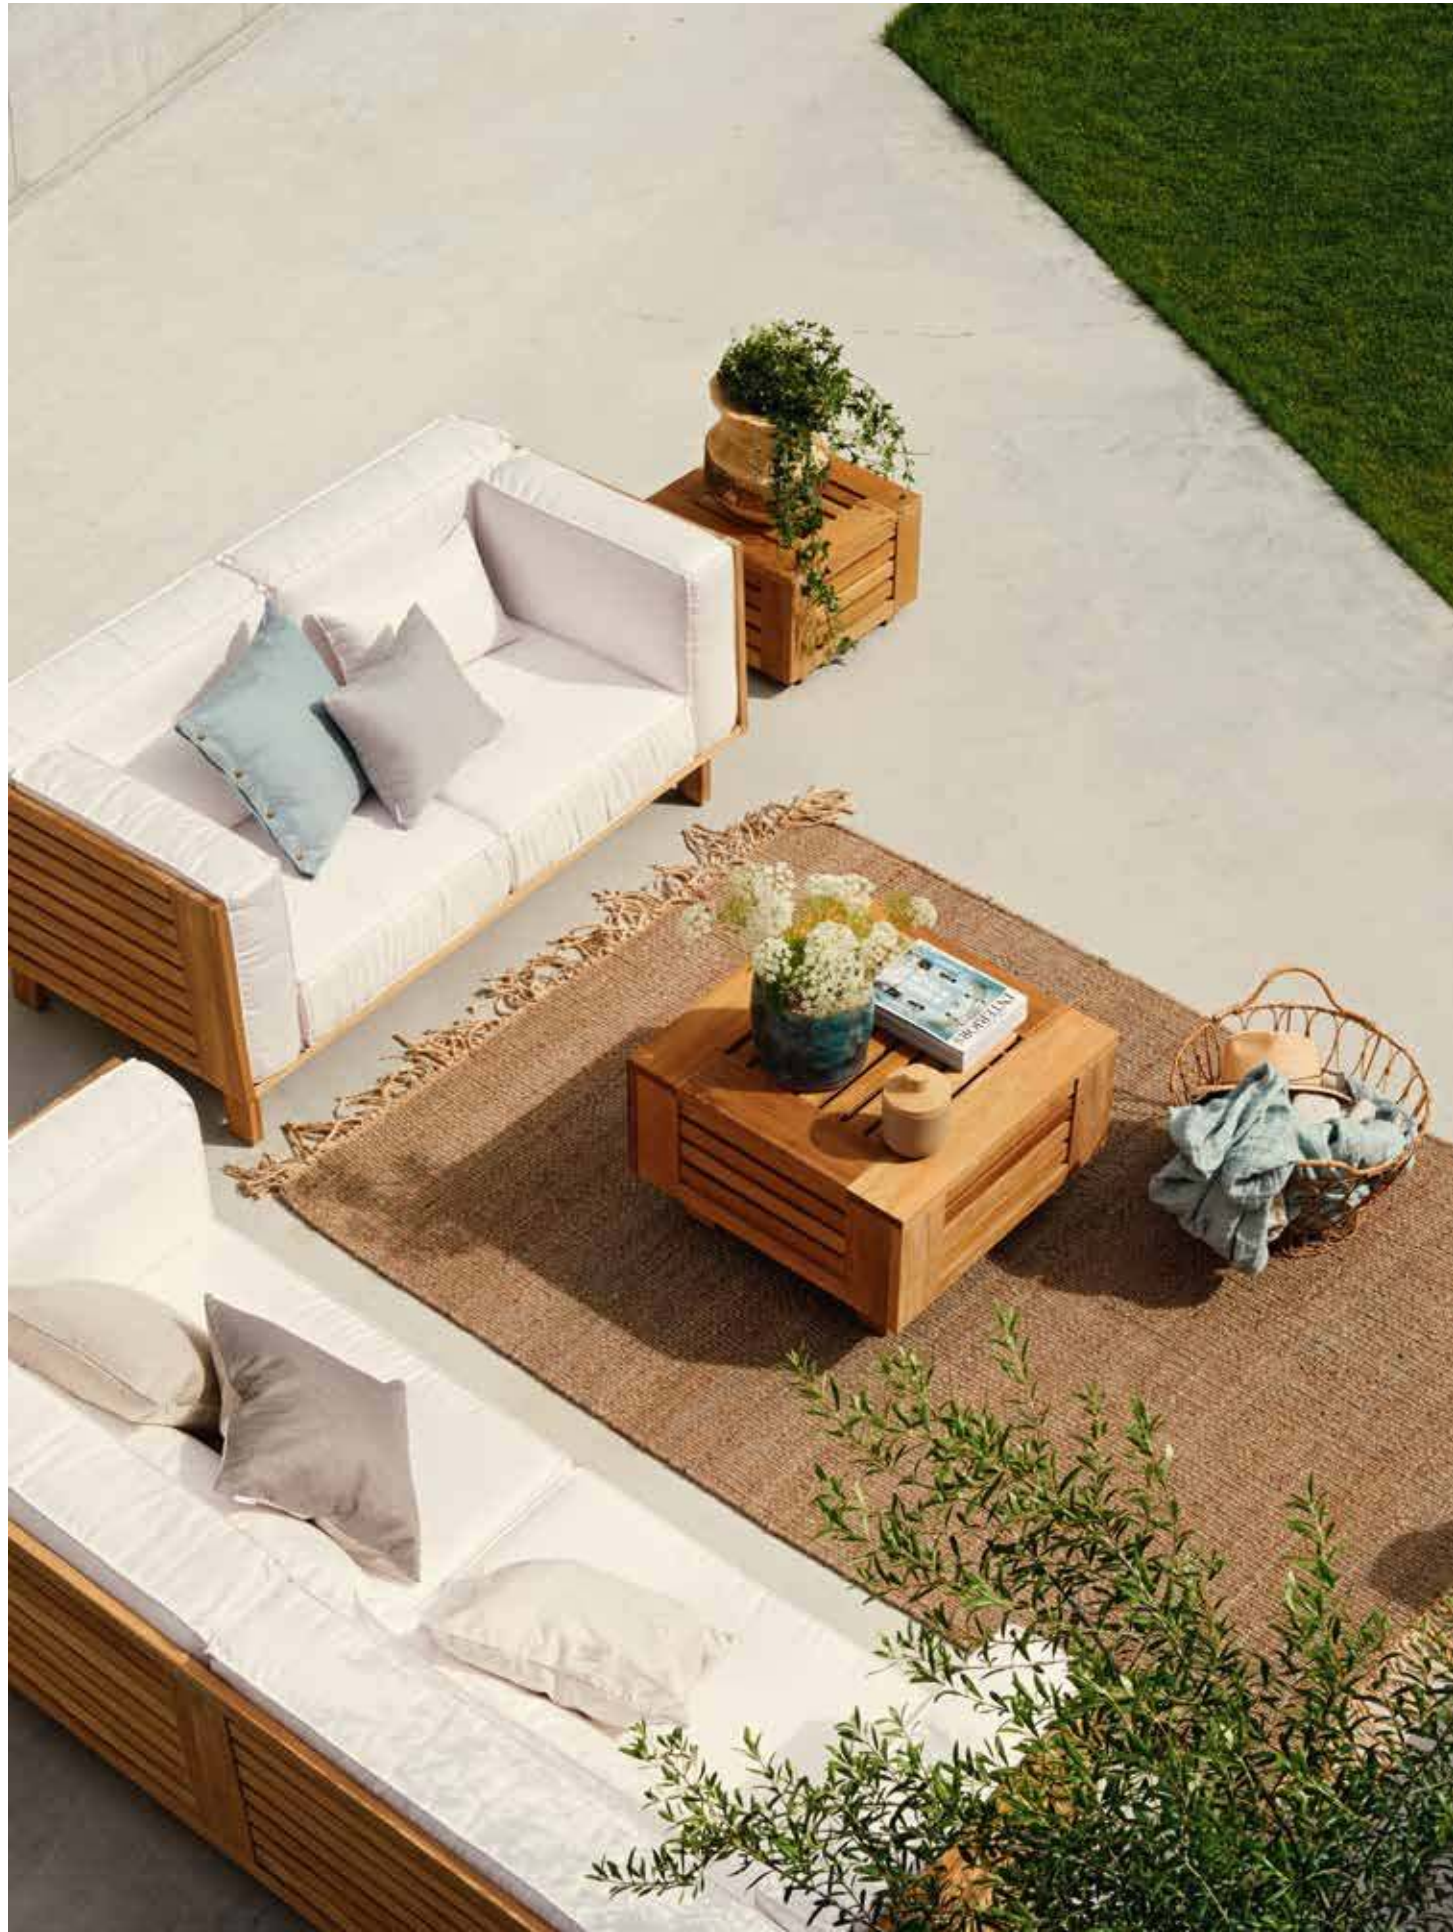

Here, southern Swedish nobility bathes in the nude.

Today the towns have grown into one and it's not always apparent what's Falsterbo and what's Skanör. But there is, they say, an embankment separating the two, with Skanör south of it and Falsterbo to the north.

Our lounge ranges Falsterbo and the new Skanör are not easily separated either, with the latter as an evolvement sprung out the former. But still there are some distinct differences. Like the taller back-rest with nine slats instead of seven, and the positioning of the cushions.

We were going to write something poetic about secrets here. But we changed our minds and went for a more practical approach instead. The Skanör Table can be used to hide stuff. Like that Palo Coelho book that you like but don't want people to see.

VIKEN

They say imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. If that's true, it's unlikely that any chair has been flattered as much as Viken. When Gunilla Norin designed it in 1983, she wanted a practical and comfortable chair for her balcony. So she made one.

Viken is the very essence of an idea that, in hindsight, is so obvious that it seems so simple: overlap the slats so the seat can be folded. But the structure is unusual since it's made entirely out of wood. There are no screws, frame or metal rods. What you see is what you get. And what you see is teak.

For the past 30 years, the imitations and copies of this legendary chair have come fast and furious. Some believe that it's the most copied chair of all time – and that could well be the case.

When you buy a Viken, you're buying the original. And it's an extremely comfortable original in which to sit. Indeed, it's fortunate that Gunilla didn't just go out and buy a chair that historic day.

Many chairs are described as »teak chairs«, but for Viken it's really true. It's all teak. No metal at all. (Okay, so there's a shiny metal Skargaarden plate on the back. But that's it.)

THE HIERARCHY OF NEEDS?

It's known from psychology, that when you've taken care of the basic needs of Scandinavian design furniture, you start feeling an urge for accessories. Ok, so maybe we made that up, but it's still true.

Good thing we have some really neat things to go with the furniture. When night falls (or at the time of year when the day never bothers to even show up), you might need some light. So we've developed candle lanterns and the Tipi outdoor lamps, in association with Ateljé Lyktan. And of course the Boo fire basket and candle holders.

For those chilly spring days, early autumn or when summer is simply being "Swedish", we provide throw blankets to keep us warm. And we have cushions made for outdoor use in a wide range of colours and designs, so everyone can find their favourite.

What else? Oh, some neat details for setting the table. That should cover most needs, we believe.

Luxury can be about extravagant things. Or it can be about simply having a lot of candles and lanterns to put them in.

ANHOLT

A range of modular lounge furniture, made of aluminum, with cushions in Sunbrella fabric covered outdoor high quality foam filling. Or, put another way, a range that looks good and is also maintenance-free.

KORSÖ

This table is named after an island just east of Sandhamn in the Stockholm archipelago. It looks almost like a jetty that stretches, slat by slat, over the water. The roundness of the corners is soft, like rocks that have been polished by the sea for thousands of years.

SALTÖ

Lounge and dining range, that offers maintenance-free furniture with a distinct, Scandinavian, design. Aluminium frames, gently curved and elegant, with Sunbrella covered cushions, repelling any rain. And high quality outdoor foam, just to get rid of any humidity that could, in theory, get in via the seams.

ACCESSORIES

The popular fire basket, Boo, comes in two sizes. The smaller one for outdoor candles. The Tipi lamp is made in collaboration with renowned Ateljé Lyktan. The storm lanterns are as beautiful this year as they were last. And the soft goods complete the collection with elaborate design details and great materials.

SUNBRELLA UPHOLSTERY CARE AND CLEANING

To keep Sunbrella fabrics looking good, the best thing is to brush off dirt before it becomes embedded in the fabrics and wipe up spills or clean soon after a stain occurs. The quicker you clean spills and stains, the easier they can be to remove.

OUTDOOR UPHOLSTERY

Should there be a new spill or stain on your Sunbrella fabric, try the following first:

- Blot (don't rub) liquid spills with a clean, dry cloth. For oil-based spills, apply an absorbent such as corn starch, then remove with a straight edge.
- Spray on a mild cleaning solution of soap (such as Dawn or Woolite) and water.
- Rinse the fabric thoroughly to remove all soap residue. Then air dry.

If this doesn't get the stain completely out, here's how to clean the fabric:

CLEANING REMOVABLE FABRIC

Skargaarden strongly recommend hand washing of all Sunbrella fabrics. Soak fabric in a solution of 1/4 cup mild soap per gallon of lukewarm water. Use a sponge or very soft bristle brush to lightly agitate the stain. Then rinse thoroughly to remove all soap residue, and allow fabric to air dry.

CLEANING NON-REMOVABLE FABRIC

Prepare a solution of 1/4 cup mild soap per gallon of lukewarm water. Use a soft bristle brush to clean, allowing the cleaning solution to soak into the fabric. Rinse thoroughly to remove all soap residue and allow fabric to air dry.

MOLD AND MILDEW STAINS

Sunbrella fabrics do not promote mildew growth, however, mildew may grow on dirt and other foreign substances if not removed from the fabric. To remove mold or mildew:

- Prepare a solution of 1 cup of bleach and 1/4 cup mild soap per gallon of water.
- Spray on entire area and allow to soak into the fabric for 15 minutes.
- Clean entire surface area with a sponge, clean towel or very soft bristle brush.
- Rinse thoroughly to remove all soap residue.
- Air dry.

For severe mold/mildew growth, bleach quantities may be increased. It is best to clean the entire surface area of the fabric to avoid water rings and stains.

TEAK MAINTENANCE

Teak is a hardwood tree, called Tectona grandis in latin. Apart from being very stylish, it’s also exceptionally durable and it needs very low maintenance. Do note, however, that the latter isn’t the same as “no maintenance”. Below are a few tips on what to do, and what not to do.

At Skargaarden we only use only high grade teak, harvested from carefully controlled plantations. You don’t have to use any kind of pre-servatives or treatments to ensure the longevity of your outdoor teak.

NEW FURNITURE

All our teak furniture are sanded and polished at delivery – but that’s it. If you’re using the furniture outside, and they are exposed to water, they will get a bit rough. This is a natural process and is solved by sanding the teak. It usually only happens twice, in the beginning.

DON’T OIL OUTDOOR TEAK FURNITURE

Oiling teak is a good thing if you are planning on using the furniture indoors. Outdoor teak furniture should not be oiled. It will not make it last longer, but it will tie you into a tiresome maintenance routine. Oiled teak is more likely to mildew and will cause irregular coloring as it weathers.

New teak furniture often appears smooth and “polished” – this comes from the oil that occurs naturally in the wood. The oil on the surface of your teak will gradually evaporate when the furniture is outdoors (this is what happens when it turns grey). It’s the oil that remains below the surface that gives the wood its strength and durability. This is why Skargaarden teak can be left outside all year long.

SOME SHADES OF GREY

As mentioned already, left outdoors, our teak furniture will naturally weather to a silver grey color. You will begin to notice this “greying” in a few months, depending on the amount of sun and rain your furniture is exposed to. During the weathering process there may be some roughening of the grain, occuring in spots. You may even notice a few small cracks. Water spots or other discoloration may also occur during the weathering process. All these flaws will eventually even out, and the furniture will take on a uniform silver-grey color. It’s a natural, living material.

HOW TO KEEP THE ORIGINAL COLOR

So, what if you don’t fancy the grey color and want to keep the original dark color of the teak? Your piece of furniture can be restored, by cleaning it with mild, soapy water and a soft bristle scrub brush. A good teak cleaner is also very effective. It requires no heavy scrubbing or polishing. A teak sealer can then be applied after cleaning, which will help to maintain the honey-like color of your teak. Teak sealer needs to be reapplied about once a year, and should not be applied to new teak. Remember to wipe your teak furniture clean with water and a mild detergent and then let it dry – before you apply the sealer. Apply the sealer in a thin layer! Less is really more.

OTHER TIPS FOR PROTECTING AND CARING THE TEAK

Cleaning your teak furniture every now and then is a good thing. It helps maintaining the general appearance and prevents dirt from building up. Hosing it will do the trick, so it’s not that much of an effort. Just don’t use a high-preasure washer. As mentioned earlier, use a mild detergent and rinse afterwards. You may of course cover your furniture when you are not using it for a long period of time. That will help keep it clean and protected (especially in areas with a lot of tree sap or dust), but is not essential.

If you do choose to use protective covers, it is very important that you use only “breathable” covers that don’t trap the humidity, but allow constant ventilation. If you’re in a region with cold and snowy winters, we recommend you to store the furniture in a roof-covered place.

OUR MATERIALS

All our teak, leather and glass is selected from a long-term perspective of sustainability. Our teak comes from carefully selected approved plantations with the highest available quality. Our steel and aluminum products need no maintenance, apart from gentle cleaning every now and then.

Our outdoor fabrics are from Sunbrella and Serge Ferrari, both leading companies in the development of weather-resistant fabrics. We use Urecel QuickDry foam in our cushions, that permits maximum water drainage and air circulation, to keep the cushions dry and fresh.
